Secondary gradients

We have a varied set of gradients to complement our main color palette.

These gradient combinations were designed to start with white or dark blue, and end in either orange, green, or electric blue.

The orange-to-red gradient combination is exclusively used for executions like masks, to deepen the sense of warmth from our primary orange color by applying red.